

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A mobile apparatus comprising a broadcast receiving function for receiving a television broadcast and a telephone communication function for performing a telephone communication, wherein an audio output device

5 comprising audio output units of two systems, the audio output device outputting a television audio and a telephone-received audio, and an audio processing circuit for outputting the television audio using one of the audio output units of the two systems and outputting the telephone-received audio using the other audio output unit when a telephone communication is

10 performed while the television is continuously viewed / listened to, are provided.